- Lieut. Colonel James S. Hester, of the 22d Indiana, arrived in the city yesterday. He brings favorable reports from our gallant boys. It is understood in the army that the recent appointment of John A. Hendricks to the Colonelcy of the 22d, made by the Governor upon the supposition that Col. Jeff. C. Davis had been promoted to a Brigadier Generalship, and also the appointment of Mr. Hester to the Lieut, Colonelev, is null and void, Davis being merely acting Brigalier. The consequence is, Davis still holds his position as Colonel, Hendricks as Lieut. Colonel. and our distinguished friend Hester is left out in the cold. " The last and the same is a

> HELLER IN St. Louis .- By our latest ex changes we see that this wonderful performer of "mystery, magic and music" is still in St. Louis, and notwithstanding he has been there nearly two weeks, is nightly crowding the Mercantile Library Hall to its utmost capacity with better pleased audiences than ever before convened in that city. If all that is said of him be true-and we have no reason to doubtour citizens may confidently look for a rich treat in his two entertainments.

THEATRICAL -Mr. Felix A. Vincent and Miss. Marion Macarthy, during next week will play a star engagement in Cincinnati. We assure the denizens of that city that the performances of these distinguished actors are chaste, elegant and unapproachable. METROPOLITAN HALL. - This is most positively the last night of the gorgeous fairy spectacle of the Invisible Prince, besides which it is the last dramatic performance until Monday, the 10th of February, the Hall being occupied next week by the magician, Heller. DESCRIPTION OF THE PRINTING Hobert Heller.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 31, 1862. EDITOR SENTINEL: I was made glad this mornng by your announcement of Robert Heller, for the entertainment of our appreciative and music oving people for the next week. For myself, even the anticipation of so rich a treat is a great pleasure. It was my good fortune to witness one of Mr. Heller's unrivalled entertainments at Louisrille, last summer, and to listen to his most skillful performance on the piano, on which instrument, in my opinion, he excels greatly the renowned Strakosch. As an organist I have no hesitation in pronouncing him without a peer. Deum, or his voluntary at the close of service.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE -The Messrs. Glenn have purchased the lot on Washington street, known as the "Gregg property," next to the corner of Alabama street, 671% feet front by 195 deep, for $8,250. This sale is an evidence that property in Indianapolis is holding its own, notwithstanding the war times. The Messrs. Glenn propose to erect a block of brick stores upon this lot during the coming season. It has been suggested that this would be an excellent location for a Concert Hall, so constructed as to be used for concerts, lectures and religious purposes. On secular evenings it could be used for scientific and social amusements of a moral character, and on Sundays it might be used for a free church, where some young Spurgeon could proclaim the gospel to the thousands in our city who are unable to pay for sitting in our aristocratic temples white. of worship, without price and for the free will offerings of those who attend.

Fugs .- We call the attention of the ladies and the public generally to the circulars issued by L. I. Mossler, No. 10 West Washington street. He has unquestionably the finest and most extensive stock of elegant, rare and rich furs ever offered in Indianapolis. He, that these desirable articles may be brought within the reach of all, will offer them at auction. The sales will commence this morning at 10 o'clock, and continue from day to day. Ladies are particularly requested to call and examine the stock. Mr. Mossler's courteous clerks will take great pleasure in showing them everything they wish to see.

J. R. B. Glasscock, Captain Co. F., 6th reg., Ind. Vols. -A Scorca Clergyman's Wife. -James Fraser, the author of a work on sanctification, a minister of great repute in the first half of the last century, was a man cursed in a fiery belpmeet. She was a woman to try'a husband's patience: A cold, unheeding, worldly woman was she. Never did her godly husband sit down to a comfortable meal in his own house, and often would he have fainted from sheer want of needful sustenance, but for the considerate kindness of some of his parishioners. She was too insensate to try to hide her treatment of him, and well was it for him, on one account, that she was. His friends thus knew of his ill treatment, and were moved to do what they could for his comfort. A godly acquaintance arranged with him to leave a supply of food in a certain place, beside his usual walk, of which he might avail himself when he starved at home. Even light and fire in his study were denied him on the long cold winter evenings; and as his study was his only place of refuge from the cruel scourge of his wife's tongue and temper there, shivering in the dark, he used to spend his winter evenings at home. Compelled to walk in order to keep himself d30-d3m warm; and accustomed so to do when he was preparing himself for the pulpit, he always kept his hands before him as feelers in the dark to warn him of his approaching the wall at either side of the room. In this way he actually wore a hole through the plaster at each end of his accustomed beat, on which some eves have looked that distened with light from other fire than that of ove at the rememberance of his cruel wife. But the godly husband had learned to thank the Lord for the discipline of his trial. Being once at a Presbyterian dinner alone among a group of moderates, one of them proposed the health of their wives, and turning to Mr. Fraser, said as he winked to his companions: "You, of course, will cordially join in drinking to this toast." "So I will, and so I ought," Mr. Fraser said, "for mine has been a better wife to me than any one of yours has been to you." "How so?" they all exclaimed. "She has sent me," was the reply, "seven times a day to my knees, and that is more than any of you can say of yours."

On the day on which her godly husband entered into his eternal rest, and a very few hours Corner Washington and Delaware after his death, some of the elders, on hearing the sad tidings, hurried with stricken hearts and n tears to the manse. To their horror, they found Mrs. Fraser outside, feeding her poultry Approaching her, one of them said, sobbing as be spoke, "So Mr. Fraser has gone to his rest." "Oh yes! the poor man died this morning," she said, as she scattered the corn among the fowls, "if you want to see the body you can go in-
